HOLIDAYS OVER.
 The holidays are over. The Christmas and New Year's celebrations have come and passed into memory. While it is not official, the return of the younger generation to their schools practically ends the holiday season for what are the various celebrations without our boys and girls. There are many homes in Rock county where there has been an absent member this holiday season, whose service flags fly and Red Cross emblems are displayed. Still these absent members have been remembered by loving friends and their holidays made happier by the thought they are doing their duty.

The holidays are over and the average home settles down to the routine life once more. This year the sewing circles, the Red Cross work, the home saving, the thrift thought, play a far more important part than cards and society formerly did. This nation and its responsibilities, and from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast the holidays have been but a mere ceremony to the real work that is to come. Rock county is doing its share. Will continue to do it. It will keep up the record it made in the sale of Liberty bonds by the purchase of Liberty stamps, and will further its efforts in the direction of Red Cross supplies.

We are all called upon to make some sacrifice; perhaps not the supreme sacrifice of those boys who "go over the top," but in our home life, our business life, each individual can do their share toward winning this war. Long ago our ancestors, "waste not, want not." Today we are told "one slice of bread a day" can do to help win the struggle of ages. The man with the sweet tooth, the woman who prefers a novel and a box of candy to an hour or so of healthful exercise, can not see the justice of the cry "conserve the sugar, any more than the merchant the cotton to her or his tastes." Still we must conserve. The holidays are over. Lent approaches, the forty days of self-denial, let us be prepared.

Soon another call will be made for the drafted boys and they will be called to assemble in their various camps for intensive training. There will be more young faces missing, but still we who remain behind must take up our work and follow out the life we laid down for us with thoughts for the future that will be encouraging for the year to come.

JUST HONORS.
 Down at Waco, Texas, Company M, the only Wisconsin national guard unit to remain in its organization its officers and its latter, in the grand transfer of the national guard from state troops into federal troops, was picked as the crack company of the entire thirty-second division for display upon the banners of the moving picture theatres of all the army camps in federal service. It is an honor well deserved and credit lies with its captain, Edgar N. Caldwell, and his able corps of lieutenants and sergeants, all Rock county boys, with the exception of Captain Caldwell and Lieutenant Woods, whom the company has adopted with due formality. Company M has been a credit to the county and will continue to be so. It will "go over the top" when the time comes, and no one will be ashamed of the members of the only entirely Rock county organization that went from the state at the call of the president last summer. Down at Camp Grant there is a straight organization composed of only men from Rock county, Company C of the Machine Gun Battalion, "The Suicide club" they call it. The men are all those who can be depended upon through thick and thin and they are making good. These citizen soldiers of ours are men to be proud of. They are receiving just honors, and rightly so, and we who stay at home should accord them all credit due for their patriotism and advancement awarded them.

BAKER'S RESIGNATION.

Some one has dared to intimate that the retirement of Secretary of War Baker, one of the leading pacifist members of President Wilson's cabinet, be demanded. Why it is rank treason to suggest such a thing—still, would it not be a blessing to the nation, particularly to the men in khaki, who are called to the colors, and are suffering from the inefficiency of the red taped, antiquated war methods of the military department of the United States, headed by a pacifist who sees the dove of peace fluttering about his chimney tops each morning. Let us hope that if there is a possibility of this happening, let it be quickly done before more damage than has already been accomplished is permitted. Just as a suggestion. Let Baker resign and put Roosevelt in as secretary of war. Say what a slashing of red tape there would be and how many official heads would fall into the basket while the women of the United States knitted on, as did the women of France when the guillotine played its part in making republicans out of aristocrats.

SCHOOL THEIEVRY.

The petty larceny that exists in our high school, of rubbers, gloves, mittens, and even small amounts of money, is something that is appalling when taken in the aggregate. One does not like to advertise the fact that many of our young people are becoming adept at proving themselves with articles that do not belong to them, but still the fact remains, it is so. While we have not yet had any really important steps taken to construct a new high school

THE SNOW.

The time to show true patriotism is right now. Clean your walks. Obey the city ordinance and permit the pedestrians to exercise the rights they have under the constitution without hindrance. Be one of the army of patriots and clean your walks and keep them clean. Every case of pneumonia that results from violation of the city ordinance as to cleaning away snow and ice from sidewalks is directly traceable to some one individual who cleans a path for himself and says "To h— with the public! Clean your walks."

Registration of all alien enemies by February 1st will not actually register the great majority of the dangerous enemies that live here in this country. The most dangerous are those who have become citizens and openly espouse the cause of the government, but secretly work for its destruction. Some time the government will wake up to this evil. How long would an American live in Germany who says half what some of our "alien enemies" say every day here? Just about long enough to summon a firing squad. Yet there are permitted to live here and wax fat and our sons and relatives go forth to fight for the cause of humanity. No race hatred talk this! Just plain facts. "Think it over and see if you do not reach the same conclusion."

General Pershing continues to prepare for what is to come and he is missing no bets. As fast as he finds an officer not up to standard he sends him back home, and when he gets ready to start fighting it is going to be "over the top" for every man in his command, and it is safe to say that Pershing will be there to help lead the charge.

So our soldiers are being clad in "shoddy"? Well, from all accounts a whole lot of them were not being clad in anything, and if they had waited for Uncle Sam to clothe them after being served with notice to become warriors, they would have resembled Adam in the garden of Eden. So much for army red tape. Cut it out.

Funny how different Lloyd George and the Emperor's ideas of peace are. Perhaps before the Kaiser really gets down to brass tacks he may have to consult a few other persons than himself as to what to offer.

It looks as though Russia is going to get back into the fighting ranks of the allies. As the Irishman winks a fight once remarked: "More power to them, the devils, I hate peace!"

FROM THE HADES WEEKLY MELTING POT.

An unusual honor was paid a new arrival yesterday. A colden large magazine arrived from the states, and when he approached the throne, His majesty wanted to take a well-earned vacation.

Bluebeard, Simon Legree, Capt. Kidd and Jesse James threaten to leave if any more food profiteers are allowed to find refuge here. They say it is no place for gentlemen any more. Three temperance champions arrived yesterday and were immediately put in the chain gang cutting ice in the frigid portion of Gehenna.

"There is some lack of a coal shortage here, but it is not worrying the inhabitants. In fact they are rejoicing over it."

AGAIN, ISN'T IT ABOUT TIME TO WIND UP THAT WATCH ON THE RHINE?

The Wisconsin senator is going to make a speech in his own defence. It is hoped that the gentleman from Potsdam gets an impartial hearing and then find himself on the sidewalk.

MORE EVERY MINUTE.

I cannot sing the old songs.
 I do not even try.
 There are many new ones
 That I must sing or die.
 They tell me I'm a slacker
 And that I don't belong.
 Unless each day I've mastered
 Some "patriotic" song.
 "Oh, Sammie, Sammie, Sammie!"
 Have you just learned to gush.
 When someone comes and sells me
 Another lot of slush.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.
 HOPE.
 Some hope remains unto the last.
 Despite the sorrow and the gloom,
 The silence of the granite tomb.
 Though bitter our lives are cast,
 The slender thread of hope remains.
 Time shall reward us for our pains.

Hope never has been wholly lost.
 The part of life as much as breath,
 Sustaining men unto their death;
 How'er the human bark is tossed
 And battered by the storms of fate
 It never finds a hopeless state.

Hope is the all resisting force.
 In human hearts that never dies;
 It sees through care with patient eyes.
 And when dismay has run its course
 And all the fleeting joy lie dead,
 Hope sees new splendors far ahead.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

HOW INDEED?
 Howzee Doit, clairvoyant, granted seances by appointment only. As our story opens, Mrs. Havvaht and Mrs. Gookens were in the mystic chamber, taking advantage of the clairvoyant's special rates for wholesale seances. They had heard the perfectly wonderful things he told people about themselves, the true and intimate details, and they had put in their applications weeks before.

Howzee Doit glared fixedly at Mrs. Havvaht.

"You live in a three-story brick house with no running water on the third floor," he said in a hollow voice. "Hanging in your wardrobe closet is a blue slattern dress with a coffee stain in the side panel. In vain you have endeavored to remove that stain. Your youngest child is named Mammie. It is a girl child."

He stared hollowly at Mrs. Gookens, and said in a fixed voice, "You have trouble with your husband over money matters. You throw a plate at him and hit the sideboard mirror. You throw a plate at the sideboard mirror and hit your husband. His full name is Silshentosh Skybang Gookens, and for that reason he signs himself merely S. Gookens. You keep a box of candy in your second bureau drawer and wonder who takes all the braided chocolates out of it. Your hall carpet is loose just as you come in the door."

Mrs. Havvaht and Mrs. Gookens, marvelling paid him and departed. They saw someone enter the house as they left.

"Did you see that girl?" said Mrs. Havvaht. "I engaged her for general housework a couple of weeks ago, but she only stayed two days."

"That's coincidence," said Mrs. Gookens. "I engaged her last week and she only stayed three days."

(Query: Did the girl houseworker have any business relations with Howzee Doit? For the first correct solution of "How Indeed?" a hand-knitted left-foot bedroom slipper will be awarded.—Ed. Morning Glory.)

PECULIARITIES IN FLYING

MARK EACH BIRDMAN
 (BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)
 Pittsburgh, Jan. 7.—That aviators have their own peculiarities in driving and can be identified as certainly as the telegraph sender can be recognized by the receivers was indicated by the story told here by Lieut. R. G. Seaton of Pittsburgh, now a member of the Royal Canadian Flying corps. "When Mac Bishop, the American flyer who has won so much fame at the French front, takes the air," said Seaton, "he can be easily identified. The machine moves with the instinct of a bird, so graceful and devoid of jerks in the movement. When Capt. Vernon Castle mounts, even if one does not see him enter the machine before he rises, his presence is betrayed by the plane's peculiar dancing of dancing in the air as we call it."

McADOO, NEW RAIL BOSS, IS RIGHT IN HIS ELEMENT ONCE MORE WITH MAN-SIZED JOB AHEAD OF HIM

When he named his secretary of the treasury to be dictator of the railroads for the government, President Wilson picked a man whose experience should make him capable, who knows transportation and finance and who measures right up to a big job. McAdoo has been in railroading since 1885, when he was appointed counsel for the Central Railroad of Georgia. He has been soldier, railroader and financier.

His biggest feat in private life was the financing and finishing of the Hudson River tubes in New York after many attempts to build them had failed. McAdoo had a struggle to convince capitalists the scheme could be accomplished and his success stamped him one of the big men of the country.

The YUKON TRAIL

A Tale of the North

By William MacLeod Raine

CHAPTER XVIII.

A New Way of Leaving a House.
The surge of disgust with which Sheba had broken her engagement to marry Macdonald, and the weeks that followed, had been a long and dreary one. It was impossible for her to wait upon him in his illness and hold any repugnance toward this big, elemental man. The thing he had done might be wrong, but the very openness and frankness of his relation to Macdonald redeemed it from shame. He was neither a profligate nor a squawman.

This was Diane's point of view, and in time it became to a certain extent that of Sheba. One takes on the color of one's environment, and the girl from Drogheda knew in her heart that Macdonald and Colman were no longer the real barriers that stood between her and the Alaskan. She had been disillusioned, saw him more clearly; and though she still recognized the quality of greatness that set him apart, her spirit did not now do such complete homage to it. More and more her thoughts contrasted him with another man.

Macdonald did not need to be told that he had lost ground, but with the dogged determination that had carried him to success he refused to accept the verdict. She was a woman, therefore to be won. The habit of victory was so strong in him that he could see no alternative.

The motor-car picnic to the Willow Creek camp was a case in point. Sheba did not want to go, but she went. The picnic was a success. Macdonald was an outdoor man rather than a parlor one. He took charge of the luncheon, lit the fire, and cooked the coffee without the least waste of effort. In his shirt sleeves, the neck open at the throat, he looked the embodiment of masculine vigor. Diane could not help mentioning it to her cousin.

"Isn't he a splendid human animal?" Sheba nodded. "He's wonderful."
"If I were a little Irish colleen and he had done me the honor to care for me, I'd have fallen rapturous deep in love with him."

The Irish colleen's eyes grew reflective. "Not if you had seen Peter first, Di. There's nothing reasonable about a girl, I do believe. She loves—or else she just doesn't."
Diane heeded a question at her point-blank. "Have you met your Peter? Is that why you hang back?"

The color flamed into Sheba's face. "Of course not. You do say the most outrageous things, Di."

They had driven to Willow Creek over the river road. They returned by way of the hills. Macdonald drew up in front of a cabin to fill the radiator.

He stood leaning beside the car.

the water bucket in his hand. Something unusual was going on inside the house. There came the sound of a third, of a groan, and then the crash of breaking glass. The whole window frame seemed to leap from the side of the house. The head and shoulders of a man projected through the broken glass.

The man swept himself free of the debris and started to run. Instantly he halted in his stride, as amazed to see those in the car as they were to see him.

"Gordon!" cried Diane.

Out of the house poured a rush of men. They too pulled up abruptly at sight of Macdonald and his guests.

A sardonic mirth gleamed in the eyes of the Scotsman. "Do you always come out of a house through the wall, Mr. Elliot?" he asked.

"Only when I'm in a hurry," Gordon pulled out a handkerchief and dabbed at some glass-cuts on his face. "Don't let us detain you," said the Alaskan satirically. "We'll excuse you, since you must go."

"I'm not in such a hurry now. In fact, if you're going to Kuskak, I think I'll ask you for a lift," returned the field agent coolly.

"And your friends-in-a-hurry—do they want a lift too?"

Big Bill Macy came swarming forward, both hands to his bleeding head. "He's a spy, curse him. And he tried to kill me."

"Did he?" commented Macdonald evenly. "What were you doing to him?"

"He can't sneak around our claim under a false name," growled one of the miners. "We'll beat his head off."

"I've had notions like that myself sometimes," assented the big Scotsman. "But I think we had all better leave Mr. Elliot to the law. He has Uncle Sam back of him in his spying, and none of us are big enough to buck the government."

Crisply Macdonald spoke to Gordon, turning upon him cold, hostile eyes. "Get in if you're going to."

Elliot met him eye to eye. "I've changed my mind. I'm going to walk."

"That's up to you."

Gordon shook hands with Diane and Sheba, went into the house for his coat, and walked to the stable. He brought out his horse and turned it loose, then he took the road himself for Kuskak.

A couple of miles out the car passed him trudging toward. As they flashed down the road he waved a cheerful and nonchalant greeting.

Sheba had been full of gaiety and life, but her mood was changed. All the way home she was strangely silent.

The days grew short. The last river boat before the freeze-up had long since gone. A month earlier the same steamer had taken down in a mail sack the preliminary report of Elliot to his department chief. One of the passengers on that trip had been Selfridge, sent out to counteract the influence of the evidence against the claimants submitted by the field agent. An information had been filed against Gordon for highway robbery and attempted murder. Wally was to see that the damning facts against him were brought to the attention of officials in high places where the charges would do most good. The details of the story were to be held in reserve for publicity in case the muckraker magazines should try to make capital of the report of Elliot.

Kuskak found much time for gossip during the long nights. It knew that Macdonald had gone on the head of Elliot in spite of the scornful protest of the younger man. The case against the field agent was pending. Pursuit of the miners who had robbed the big mine-owner had long ago been dropped. Somewhere in the North the outlaws lay hidden, swallowed up by the great white waste of snow.

The general opinion was that Mac was playing politics about the trial of his rival. He would not let the case come to a jury until the time when a conviction would have most effect in the States, the gossips predicted. They did not know that he was waiting for the return of Wally Selfridge. The whispers touched closely the personal affairs of Macdonald. The report of his engagement to Sheba O'Neill had been denied, but it was noticed that he was a constant guest at the home of the Pagets. Young Elliot called there too. Almost any day one or other of the two men could be seen with Sheba on the street. Those who wanted to take a sporting chance on the issue knew that odds were offered sub rosa at the Pay Streak saloon of three to one on Mac.

Sheba rebelled impotently at the situation. The mine-owner would not take "No" for an answer. He wooed her with a steady, dominant persistence that shook even her strong will. There was something resistless in the way he took her for granted. Gordon Elliot had not mentioned love to her, though there were times when her heart fluttered for fear he would. She did not want any more complications.

She wanted to be let alone. So when an invitation came from her little friends the Husteds, signed by all three of the children, asking her to come and visit them at the camp back of Katma, the Irish girl jumped at the chance to escape for a time from the decision being forced upon her.

Sheba pledged her cousin to secrecy until after she had gone, so that Miss O'Neill was able to slip away on the stage unnoticed either by Macdonald or Elliot. The only other passenger was an elderly woman going up to the Katma camp to take a place as cook.

Later on the same day Wally Selfridge, coming in over the ice, reached Kuskak with important news for his chief. He brought with him an order from Winton, commissioner of the general land office, suspending Elliot pending an investigation of the charges against him.

Oddly enough, it was to Genevieve Mallory that Macdonald went for consolation when he learned that Sheba had left town. He had always found it very pleasant to drop in for a chat with her, and she was to it that he met the same friendly welcome now that a rival had annexed his scalp to her slender waist. For Mrs. Mallory though it was at her expense.

"No. Give the girl time. Catch her impulse on the rebound. She'll be bored to death at Katma and she will come back docile."

Her scarlet lips, the long, unbroken lines of the sinuous, opulent body, the challenge of the smoldering eyes, the warmth of her laughter, all invited him to forget the charms of other women. The faint feminine perfume of her was wafted to his brain. He felt a beseeching of the blood.

Stepping behind the chair in which she sat, he tilted back the head of lustrous bronze, and very deliberately kissed her on the lips.

For a moment she gave herself to his embrace, then pushed him back, rose, and walked across the room to a little table. With fingers that trembled slightly she lit a cigarette. Sheathed in her close-fitting gown, she made a strong carnal appeal to him, but there was between them, too, a close bond of the spirit. He made no apologies, no explanation.

Presently she turned and looked at him. Only the deeper color beneath her eyes betrayed any excitement.

"Unless I'm a bad prophet you'll get the answer you want when Sheba comes back. Colly."

Dinner Stories

The dominie was told by his family doctor that a glass of toddy would do him no harm. "If I canna manage it," said the minister, "my housekeeper wad gossip among the church women."

"Oh, keep it in your private cupboard, and when you get your shaving water in the morning, get a little extra supply."

A month later one of the female parishioners who was calling on the housekeeper inquired as to the dominie's health.

"I'm sair afraid the meenister is losing his mind," was the answer. "Any goodness! how is that?" said the visitor.

"Well, he asks for shaving water five or six times a day."

Bessie had been given a dime to invest in ice cream soda.

"Why don't you give your dime to missions?" said the minister who was calling.

"I thought about that," said Bessie, "but I think I'll buy the ice cream and let the druggist give the dime to the missions."

Mistress—Susan, I understand that you walk out with a young man; I hope he is respectable."

"Oh, yes, ma'am, and he is a Trenchman, and can't speak no English."

"Then how in the world do you manage your courting, Susan?"

"Law, ma'am, isn't the kissin' and buggin' the same in every language?"

"Well, Mary, you have chosen a hymn very appropriate to the lesson. But what made you choose that particular one?"

"Please, miss, it's the same number as my policeman."

Courage is not simply the absence of fear. To be brave is not merely not to be afraid. Courage is that combination of clear coherence of all a man's faculties and powers, which makes his manhood an operative unit in the world.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested foods, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You know them by their olive color. They do the work without gripping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. 4c, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Jan. 7, 1878. Windy and wintry. The men are toasting their toes at the home fireplace. Don't grumble. You've been praying for it. Come off cold. Dr. Horne, who takes quite a delight in fancy chickens, has just sold and shipped to parties in Indiana a $50 rooster. He has made several other sales of interest to hen men. The first teachers' meeting of the winter term will be held in the Central school house at 9 o'clock a. m. tomorrow. A full and prompt attendance on the part of teachers is expected. Some time ago a certain doctor in this city had his piano patched up, and from again making sad havoc with the jammers, he sprinkled a beautiful amount of cayenne pepper in the stomach of the instrument. Yesterday the instrument needing retuning, a well known expert was employed for the purpose. During the task of rejuvenating the strings said expert had occasion to dust off the hammer, and while doing so was taken with violent and continuous sneezing spells. Greatly alarmed at the visions of cough cordial, red flannel, bandages, trusses and spoon victims which floated before his imagination as he thought of the unusual cold he was catching, he hastened to the adjoining office of a doctor and eagerly pleaded for a prescription. The doctor, who was in the course of preparation when other members of the family entered the room where the piano sat and were immediately attacked by a like nasal irritation. The cause of the late unpleasantness was discovered in time to prevent the expert from having his bill cancelled by a sub-off for prescription.

COMPANY C BUSY IN WAR PREPARATIONS

Winter has struck the men of the 331st Machine Gun Battalion, and when on arising on Thursday morning they were greeted with a blizzard. It is cold at Camp Grant, very cold, but that does not mean that the men are cold.

The government has made every provision for the comfort of the men, and although they are working outside a good deal of the time there is very little chance for them to get cold. They all have knit sweaters to wear, helmets to protect their ears and heavy overcoats to keep the cold from their bodies. Each man has a heavy blanket to use when he is in his quarters. There is no fear that Camp Grant is going to be a Valley Forge. Far from it, the men are more comfortable here than they would be if they were working back in civilian life.

The barracks are very warm and the steam is kept on throughout the night and when the men arise in the morning they do not feel the cold. The barracks are large, steam heated rooms which are very comfortable. During the day, besides drilling outside where the snow is, school is held in the barracks.

Many people are heard to say they cannot understand how the boys are going to keep warm, but the boys themselves are not worrying because they are well supplied with heavy clothing. The men of the 331st Machine Gun Battalion will be warm. There is not one seriously ill person in the entire battalion and that is due to the fact that the men are being cared for, and folks back home need not worry on these cold and dreary nights that their boys are not comfortable, because they are enjoying life to the fullest extent and are far from being cold and uncomfortable.

Details for the dancing party to be given by Co. A, 331st Machine Gun Battalion, at the gym in Madison on Saturday, Jan. 10, have been completed and the men are now waiting eagerly for the big dance. The men have worked hard to make the ball a success and they are all sure the ball will be one of the largest ever held in Madison.

Private Wilkie says that although Private Kores and Sweeney defeated him for orderly at battalion headquarters, he lost the least bit of downcast and when he goes on guard again he will make a stronger bid for the honor. Private Wilkie says he much prefers running errands out of the office than walking post.

Private Joseph Ross of Madison has finally consented to pass up Janesville for one Saturday and on the coming Saturday he will visit Madison. Ross claims that he will go there to attend the dance and the men take it that if it wasn't for the dance he would only go as far as Janesville.

Corporal Cantwell of Madison claims he shouldn't go and any more as he is on special detail. That is the reason he made last evening when two men from his squad asked him not to put them on post.

Private Joseph H. Fitzgerald of Madison has been transferred to the ordinance department of the 331st Machine Gun Battalion and will not have his bunk in the headquarters building. The men did not like to see his leave as he was one of the bright spots of the company.

First Sergeant Howard L. Smith of Janesville is now leading by example in his accomplishments. Contest with Miss Sergeant John Hendriksen, Smith has proven to the judges that he can talk faster than Hendriksen, but John claims the point shouldn't be allowed as he says more in the end than Smith.

Private William Joyce of Janesville has been promoted to a first class private. When asked what the difference he could find was $1 a month.

Corporal David Stanton received a telephone call from Rockford Wednesday evening from a friend asking him to come to the city. But poor Dave stated that he had to attend non-comm. school, and after waiting for an hour the school was postponed.

Private Wayne Munger of Beloit says he should have his name in the paper once in a while as he is well known in the Saturday city, and that word of his friends are complaining because they do not see enough about their Wayne.

Cook Archie Van Norman is a very quiet fellow and prefers any thing connected with St. Paul. His latest preference is St. Paul avenue.

Sergeant Roy Mawhinney of Milton says he has received a letter this week. The men of the company cannot understand the reason as Roy has been one of the most popular men in the company and his letters each day have been very numerous.

Private Max Kennedy has taken into himself an inside position for the winter. Max has been detailed at the stables. He says he would much rather work there than squad right and left in the snow.

GERMAN PAPER SHOWS PICTURE OF U. S. PRISONERS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Amsterdam, Jan. 7.—A handful of captured American soldiers under cross-questioning by German officers before a crowd of German spectators, featured in the latest issue of "World in Pictures," an illustrated weekly printed in ten languages and distributed throughout the world by the German government propaganda department. The picture shows the prisoners riding in a motor lorry under heavy guard. This is entitled "American prisoners arriving in the German lines," giving the impression that the captured soldiers are a small section of a large number.

CLEVELAND TO HAVE LARGE PUBLIC HALL

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Cleveland, O., Jan. 7.—City authorities have announced that the municipal auditorium, to be known as the Cleveland Public Hall—will be completed in 1918 and in consequence various interests in the city have already combined in plans to bring one, perhaps both of the 1920 national political conventions to this city. The structure is to cost $2,500,000 and its main auditorium will seat 12,000 persons.

Its completion will remove one of the obstacles which has prevented the city from entertaining the largest conventions. Another one—the lack of sufficient hotel accommodations—is also being removed. A new fireproof hotel was opened recently making three in the city, and another one will be ready to receive guests in a few months. These four structures alone contain more than 8,000 rooms.

Actual construction work on the public hall is well under way. Excavations are practically complete. All soundings for the formation have been made and the drainage tiles have been placed. The concrete footings are going in.

The project for the structure crystallized in February 1916, after many years of discussion and committee work. Under the leadership of Mayor Harry L. Davis the plans came to a head on the basis of a publicly owned auditorium, to be built by issuing $2,500,000 of city bonds.

Work on the project was undertaken immediately. The city architect in consultation with other architects evolved plans for a structure of reinforced concrete and gray brick trimmed with stone, containing a main convention hall, or auditorium, seating approximately 12,000 persons. This main hall will have a stage 56 by 104 feet. There will be seats for 5,200 on the first floor and 8,000 in the galleries.

There will be a subsidiary or music hall with a seating capacity of more than 3,000, and the basement, which will be partially above ground, will be fitted up for exhibition space, as an adjunct to the other two halls. The combined floor space for exhibition purposes will be nearly 150,000 square feet.

Stairways will be entirely eliminated; all elevators will be obtained by inclines of sufficient size not only to handle the largest crowds but also to provide for the safe and quick handling of large exhibits.

The hall is being built on the mall of the proposed group of public buildings, of which the new city hall, government building, county court house and public library will be a part. The municipal auditorium will cover two entire city blocks.

WAR TURNS BOATING TO COMMERCE, LINES

A great boom in inland waterway traffic and development is made certain by the announcement that the United States government will spend some $3,360,000 to build two boats and barges for use on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. These barges and two boats are already under construction. This amount, added to an even larger appropriation of private capital for the same purpose, has put in motion a gigantic revival of inland water commerce, and there is every reason to believe this is not merely a war measure, but that the development will be continued and made permanent.

It is a matter of general knowledge that the railroads have been instrumental for years in "killing" river traffic. Favoritism and special rates in territory where river transportation companies tried to operate quickly put them out of business, with the result that inland water commerce had almost disappeared with the opening of the present war, whereas inland rivers and canals in the lands of other nations were one of the greatest factors in solving their transportation problems.

With the growth of the war's demands it became apparent that the railroads were unable to handle the growing traffic. Immediate action was taken by the government to encourage and assist river lines. Some of these new lines are already in successful operation, and it is assured that before the end of another season commerce will be as familiar on western rivers as freight trains are on rail lines. The government has now taken over the operation of the railroads again and returned to their private ownership. This means that "competition" will be eliminated and the power and influence of the railroads will no longer be used to retard the development of inland waterway traffic. On the other hand, spurred by the necessities of the war situation, the government can be expected to use every resource to build up the waterways and freight carrying lines to traverse them.

Pennsylvania coal and Minneapolis wheat and flour will be conveyed to New Orleans for shipment overseas. Ore from Minnesota, coal from Tennessee and other bulky crude materials will be carried by way of the unobstructed water routes as will many finished products and immediate relief of the railroad congestion is in sight.

The great stimulus this will prove to be to the development of commercial boats is easy to imagine. It will mean improved facilities at every town and city along the big western rivers, thousands of new freight carrying boats, and with the close of the war, conditions that will bring thousands of new pleasure boats.

LIQUOR HIGHWAYMAN DRINKS EVIDENCE—CAUGHT

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 7.—"I'm a government officer—show your booze if you've got any," said H. O. Good, win, of the Kansas side, on a Santa Fe passenger train near Mantattan, Kan.

A number of the passengers accommodated the supposed revenue officer by opening their grips, and he secured several quarts. Later he was found on the rear platform drinking the "evidence."

Goodwin was taken off the train at Manhattan and turned over to the federal officials for having booze and for impersonating an officer.

GOVERNMENT STORAGE PLANT BEING BUILT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Two thousand workmen have begun a mammoth government storage plant here which is to consist of three one story buildings, each a quarter of a mile in length and 96 feet wide. The men are after a record in quick construction on a cold weather job and expect to have the work completed in fifty days.

The three buildings will be placed side by side and separated by spaces for railroad tracks or driveways between them. Loading platforms ten feet wide extend along both sides of each building to handle supplies from five lines of railroad.

The first unit of the plant is to be ready within thirty days from Dec. 10, and each succeeding unit to be completed at ten day intervals. More than 2,700,000 feet of lumber are to be used in the buildings. The plank doors require more than 500 cars of cinders as a foundation, each car containing 55 cubic yards. The local lumber yards furnished all of the lumber. Each building will have hollow tile walls, heavy timber girders and posts and joisted timber roofs. The footings under the posts consist of a grillage of old railroad ties. Each unit is divided into sections by the fire walls at intervals of 176 feet. They are to be lighted by overhead sky lights, and heat, water and electric current will be furnished by the power plant of the Central Manufacturing District.

The plant is being built under the supervision of Captain A. H. McComb, construction quartermaster in charge. When erected it will be turned over to Col. A. D. Kniskern, depot quartermaster.
